

TRAILS
SIERRA ANCHA WILDERNESS

There is a network of “system” trails serving the Sierra Ancha Wilderness Area and contiguous areas. Their condition varies from satisfactory to very poor. All trails are closed to motor vehicles and mechanical transport such as bikes.

Use a great deal of caution when traveling on backcountry trails such as this one and be aware of the risks you assume.

A few brief comments are in order about the following trail:

Rim 139: 7.6 miles in length. This trail is relatively level and is easily traveled. It follows the rim and passes through stands of Ponderosa pine. Elevation: 6300 - 6800 feet. Difficulty level: Easiest. Use level: Moderate. Restrictions: Closed to all motorized equipment, bike or other mechanical transport. Trailhead: Carr TH.
