

Amos Alonzo Stagg Tree

Giant Sequoia National Monument

About:

The Stagg tree is the world's 5th largest tree, the largest tree in Giant Sequoia National Monument, and the largest privately-owned tree on Earth. Originally known as Day Tree, Stagg was renamed in 1960 to honor Amos Alonzo Stagg.

This tree is the only really large sequoia tree on private land.

The owner generously granted public access to it. Please respect the residents who live in this area by slowing your speed down to 25 MPH, and realize no bathrooms or water is available.

PLEASE NO SMOKING OR LITTERING

The Giant Sequoia (Sequoia Giganteum) are the largest trees in the world. They are native only to the Sierra Nevada Mountains of California. The Stagg Tree is the largest outside of the Sequoia and Kings Canyon National Park. The volume on the Stagg Tree is 81% of that of the largest tree, the General Sherman Tree in Sequoia National Park.

In the Name:

Amos Alonzo Stagg, the great coach of football's early years and was dedicated on his 99th birthday (1960).

Amos Alonzo Stagg (August 16, 1862 – March 17, 1965) was an American athlete and pioneering college coach in multiple sports, primarily American football. He served as the head football coach at the International Young Men's Christian Association Training School (now called Springfield College) (1890–1891), the University of Chicago (1892–1932), and the College of the Pacific (1933–1946), compiling a career college football record of 314–199–35.
